Essential Trauma-Informed Online Teaching Tools

October 29th from 2:45pm-4:00pm AZ time

Matthea Marquart, Columbia University School of Social Work
Johanna Creswell Báez, Columbia University School of Social Work
Janice Carello, Edinboro University
To teach in a manner that respects and cares for the souls of our students is essential if we are to provide the necessary conditions where learning can most deeply and intimately begin.

What comes to mind when you hear “trauma-informed”?
What do we mean by trauma-informed?

You may have heard other terms like:

- Trauma-aware
- Trauma-sensitive
- Trauma-responsive
- Compassionate teaching
- Compassionate pedagogy

In this session, we’re going to keep it simple and focus on practical tools, as opposed to theory.

When we refer to “trauma-informed” here, we mean practices aimed at helping children feel safe, be connected, get regulated and learn (Alexander, 2019)

In Trauma Sensitive Schools, educators:

- Realize the impact of adverse childhood experiences on neurobiological development and attachment
- Recognize the impact trauma on learning and behavior
- Respond by building resilience and avoiding re-traumatization
- Create a culture that prioritizes:
  - Safety – ensuring physical and emotional safety
  - Trustworthiness – being dependable, reliable, and authentic; delivering results
  - Choice – prioritizing choice, choices and options for people who have had control taken away, make a big difference
  - Collaboration – maximizing collaboration
  - Empowerment – prioritizing voice, empowerment and skill-building

That recognition of student voice and choice in physical activities during the pandemic could have positive, long-term effects on youth, said Keri Schoeff, Title IV-A safe, healthy and active student specialist at the Arizona Department of Education, which also issued guidance for physical education programs during the pandemic.

‘It's our job as physical educators to teach students to be physically literate and that means to be physically active no matter what,’ Schoeff said. ‘It's how we teach students to be fit throughout their lifetime.’

Making Space for Emotion Regulation

(Adapted from Schupp, 2004)
Recognize Signs of Stress

- What are signs your students are stressed?
  - You can’t get out of bed or look for reasons to stay there all day.
  - You dread opening your email.
  - You think you will go insane unless people stop chewing so loud.
  - You consider caffeine a part of a balanced diet.
  - You feel worse when you try to relax.

- What are signs you are stressed?

<td>Efforts are made to create an atmosphere that is respectful and accepting for all class members in both individual and group interactions, including opportunities to make and learn from mistakes.</td>
<td>Trust and transparency are enhanced by making course expectations clear, ensuring consistency in practice, and maintaining appropriate boundaries.</td>
<td>All class members are connected with appropriate peer and professional resources to help them succeed academically, personally, and professionally.</td>
<td>All class members act as allies rather than as adversaries to help ensure one another’s success. Opportunities exist for all class members to provide input, share power, &amp; make decisions.</td>
<td>All class members emphasize strengths and resilience over deficiencies and pathology; they empower one another to make choices and to develop confidence and competence.</td>
<td>All class members strive to be responsive to historical, cultural, and gender contexts in order to respect one another’s diverse experiences and identities.</td>
<td>All class members recognize each other’s strengths and resilience, and they provide feedback to help each other grow and change.</td>

Trauma Sensitive Priorities for the Online Classroom

- Predictability: Use consistent routines
- Flexibility: Provide choices where it is possible
- Connection and Warmth: Focus on compassion
- Focus on Relationship: Get to know your students
- Empowerment: Give students voice and choice

How do you connect with students and build a relationship? How do help students connect with resources to succeed academically, personally, and professionally?

Examples:

▪ Develop community guidelines together
▪ Start each meeting with connection
▪ Conduct regular check-ins with students to help determine how students are doing
▪ Provide referral information when supports are needed (e.g., guidance counselor, attendance teacher).
Connection: Create Community Agreements

Establish your classroom norms and refer back to them when reminders are needed.
Connection: Build Community Throughout

- Webcam dance parties or lip sync before or after class, including special holiday themed events
- Fun videos during breaks
- Sharing pictures during the beginning of class, fun landing image or quote
- Playlist of songs played before each class: http://tinyurl.com/InstitutePlaylist or https://sptfy.com/1fsy

Lobby Lip Sync Battle – Columbia’s Fight Song

Roar, Lion, Roar!
-written by Corey Ford (CC ’23)

Lyrics:
Roar, Lion, Roar
And wake the echoes of the Hudson Valley!
Fight on to victory evermore
While the sons of Knickerbocker rally ’round
Columbia! Columbia!
Shouting her name forever!
Roar, Lion, Roar!
For Alma Mater on the Hudson Shore!

Support: Start Each Class with a Check-in

- Start each class with a moment of connection - bring the warmth as we are making up for the digital divide
- Create a ritual of checking-in (could be quick!)
  - Provide a number on a scale of 1-10 on how you are doing
  - Provide an adjective to describe how you feel today
  - Do you have anything to tell me? This can be about school or life.
  - Use digital tools, such as google forms to have a quick survey and talk about how people are doing

Source: https://jenniferfindley.com/free-daily-check-in-google-forms-distance-learning/
Example Idea: Check-in Choice!

- One thing that has brought you hope
- One thing that has been difficult
- One act of kindness you have seen/done
- One tasty snack you have had recently

Empowerment, voice and choice
How do you create an atmosphere that is respectful of the need for safety, respect, and acceptance, including feeling safe to make and learn from mistakes?

Physical, Emotional, Social, & Academic Safety

Examples:
- Providing a calm, steady presence
- Not requiring personal disclosure
- Emphasizing learning over rule obedience
- Praising progress
- Keeping it simple
Prioritize Self-Care

- Sleep, exercise, have fun
- Take breaks, including breaks from technology
- Connect with supportive family, friends, and colleagues
- Set healthy boundaries, including reasonable work hours
- Don’t let the perfect be the enemy of the good
- Ask for help
Address Signs of Vicarious Trauma & Burnout

- Persistent or excessive anger, guilt, or helplessness in relation to students’ past or current suffering
- Preoccupation with one or more students
- Excessive interest in or fascination with details of student suffering
- Rescue fantasies
- Symptoms such as headaches, sleeplessness, intrusive imagery, emotional numbing, difficulty trusting others
- Feeling like nothing you do makes a difference

(adapted from Neumann & Gamble, 1995)
Be Predictable

- Strive to keep your courses well-organized
- Post weekly announcements, module overviews, or summaries
- Develop course rituals and routines
- Avoid surprises
- Respond promptly to emails and questions
Be Flexible

- Focus on 1-2 objectives rather than all of them
- Adapt class activities that might be affected by stress such as tests and presentations
- Develop no questions asked late policies
Validate & De-escalate

Avoid using scolding, sarcastic, or defensive language that may trigger emotional defenses. When this happens, people put energy into protecting themselves and power struggles can escalate.

😊 I can see you are feeling...
😊 I can certainly understand...
😊 I know this isn’t what you were hoping to hear...
😊 Thanks for telling me...
😊 I’m sorry I am unable to...

😡 You shouldn’t feel...
😡 You should know better...
😡 If you hadn’t...
😡 You need to...
😡 Why can’t you just...
"Help me understand."
Empowerment, Voice, & Choice

How do you empower students and colleagues to make choices, advocate for themselves, and develop confidence and competence in their knowledge and skills?

Examples:

▪ Building in choices where possible (e.g. readings, topics, font, presentation mode)
▪ Making space for 1:1 conversations
▪ Allowing multiple attempts
▪ Soliciting questions, concerns, and complaints
▪ Remind each other that it is okay to “take a break.”
Example Idea: Breakout Choice

What's better than student choice? Students loved picking their own activities and breakout rooms during class today. This was a great way to wind down after our morning of MAP testing! @BryanD205

https://twitter.com/Ms_B_Stanford/status/1311706288708087808
Example: Webcam

1) Texting or taking handwritten notes?

2) Listening deeply or napping?

3) Not paying attention or trying to listen & avoid distracting webcam images?

4) Paying close attention or reading on-screen email?

Check-in: How might you adapt one of these tools to your classroom?

Efforts are made to create an atmosphere that is respectful and accepting for all class members in both individual and group interactions, including opportunities to make and learn from mistakes.
Examples:
- scaffolding or integrating low-stakes assignments that provide opportunity to receive feedback and learn from mistakes prior to evaluation;
- modeling assertive, non-violent communication skills;
- providing content warnings prior to viewing discussing sensitive material

Trustworthiness & Transparency
Trust and transparency are enhanced by making course expectations clear, ensuring consistency in practice, and maintaining appropriate boundaries.
Examples:
- articulating clear policies and implementing them consistently;
- providing detailed assignment sheets and grading rubrics;
- responding to email within the communicated time-frame;
- avoiding all-or-nothing or zero-tolerance policies that are difficult to enforce consistently;
- consistent with course navigation and design, creating class routines or rituals

Support & Connection
All class members are connected with appropriate peer and professional resources to help them succeed academically, personally, and professionally.
Examples:
- providing referral information for campus and community resources such as advising and writing services;
- announcing campus and community events;
- facilitating peer groups and peer workshops;
- inviting guest speakers
